THE REV. J. NORMAN HALL

RECTOR 1948 -

A Brief History of St. Paul's Episcopal Church

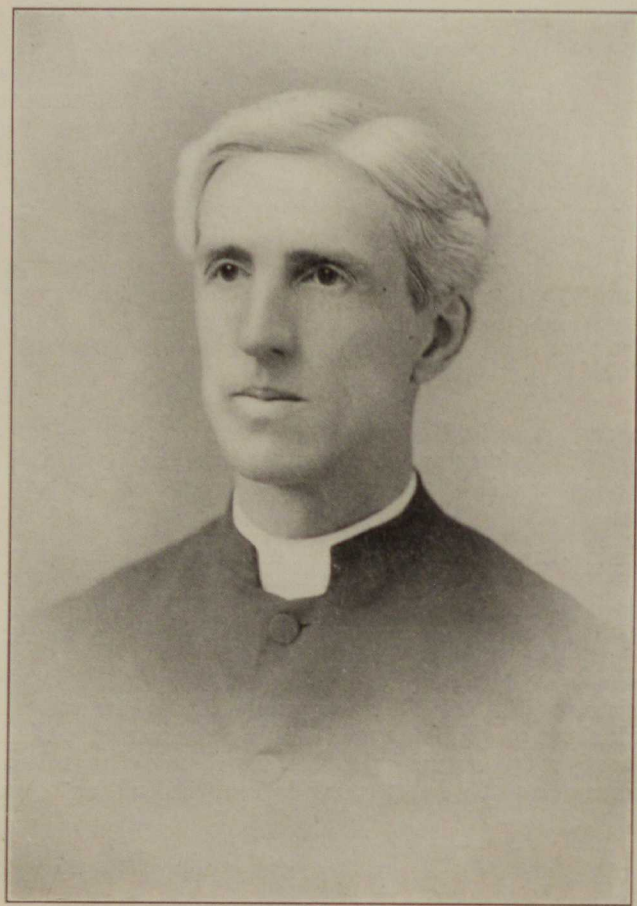

THE beginning of St. Paul's Church in Peabody, then called South Danvers, was a mission opened in 1874 by the Rev. Edward M. Gushee, D.D., soon after he became Rector of St. Peter's Church, Salem. On request, Dr. Gushee came to town, looked around and, although he met with opposition at the next meeting of the Eastern Convocation, decided that it was a promising place for the Church. An organization meeting was held on February 25, 1874, in the ladies' parlor in the Upton Block and the first Sunday services were held there on April 12th. Services were continued there for some weeks until Dr. Gushee rented Franklin Hall on the top floor in Allen's Block and had it furnished with an altar, seats and a cabinet organ. This was used until the new Church Building was opened. During this period Dr. Gushee had the active cooperation of the Rev. William I. Magill of Calvary Church, Danvers, (who became Minister-in-Charge in June), the Rev. William G. Wells of St. Peter's, Beverly, and the Rev. Mr. Hamis of St. Michael's, Marblehead. Services were held regularly on Sunday mornings and evenings with a Church School in the afternoon. Mr. Edgar W. Upton was appointed a Lay Reader and Mrs. Upton played the piano while six boys sang the chants and hymns.

The Rev. George Walker was the first settled pastor, taking charge of the Mission August 19, 1875, in connection with Emmanuel Mission, Wakefield. At that time there were about fifteen communicants, the congregation averaging thirty-five.

Very soon a lot on the corner of Lowell and School Streets was bought and a modest church building erected, which was opened for services February 27, 1876. The digging of the cellar and much of the other work about the building was done by the men of the parish, often working at night by lantern light. The church has always been fortunate in having members who do not shirk the hardest toil for its support and advancement.

The earliest financial record of the church contains a list of persons pledged for its support as follows:

Vincent Crossley, M. A. Atwood, A. L. Atwood, Job Swanton, Alexander Graham, William Jacques, Edward Draper, Jr., Richard Draper, J. Dukelow, M. S. Walker, William Roome, F. E. Gardner, Mary Maddox, John Swanton, James Jermyn, Edgar W. Upton, S. C. Lord, M. E. Crane, Robert Swanton, Mrs. M. A. Jones, Amos L. Ames, John Marshall, M. E. Morrison, Thomas Locke, Elizabeth Draper, Mrs. Smith, Mary P. Draper, Thomas Swanton, Samuel Ballentine, H. Gardner, Edward Draper, Sr., Mrs. Annie Turo, Mary A. Morris, William Price, Mrs. Mary A. Fox, Mary Upton, Lucy Upton, Richard Wolfe, Robert Patterson, W. C. Baker, Elizabeth G. Upton, Mrs. D. P. Grosvenor, Florence Hannon, Robert Spence, William Draper, Edward Spence, Mrs. Tuttle, John C. Scott, Sarah Moxley, Mrs. G. Prescott, Mrs. S. A. Merrill, Mrs. Estes, James Rodie, J. H. Busteed, John Spence, George Fanning, William Hingston.

THE REV. GEORGE WALKER
RECTOR, 1875 - 1888

Among later families and individuals during Mr. Walker's pastorate were: James Anderson, Matthew Anderson, Edwin Butler, Henry Baetje, Charles Buxton, John Bateman, H. Cotchin, Edward Duke, H. Dole, John Foster, John French, Peter Gillis, Stephen Hurley, Mrs. Forness, James Hurley, William Hoagboom, Mrs. S. A. Hodgkins, Freke Hingston, Samuel and David Hill, Charles Hockenhull, Benjamin Jacobs, Cyrus Jackson, William Jowett, Mrs. W. F. Littlefield, Mrs. Stephen Littlefield, Mrs. S. G. McCarthy, Mrs. G. M. Osborn, William S. Osborne, Mrs. Frederick Osborn, William Oldson, George Pawley, Mary Phillips, George Rand, Thomas Rawledge, Robert Ryer, A. C. Sawyer, John Scott, Mrs. E. A. Sanborn, John Spence, T. W. Shepherd, David Spence, James Tuttle, Mrs. F. Thomas.

The Puritan prejudice against the Episcopal Church had not quite died out. Nevertheless, many from the longer established religious bodies in town, attracted in many cases by the reverence and beauty of the services, came and joined the mission, which grew and prospered.

Mr. Walker is remembered with great affection by those who were under his pastoral care. He had a tireless missionary spirit, a close personal acquaintance and friendship with all his parishioners, from the infants to the aged, was a constant visitor in their homes, and took an interest in all their affairs. He watched over his people, young and old, rich and poor, with a true shepherd's unceasing vigilance. Absence from church for a Sunday or two was always noted by him and the absentee promptly called upon.

In speaking of his work here, Mr. Walker writes: "The years of my work in Peabody are among the pleasantest in my ministry, and I want here to record my appreciation of the faithful cooperation and affection of the people."

Mr. Walker resigned his charge in Peabody in 1888. During his twelve years of service there were one hundred and fifty baptisms, and the communicant list had increased to about ninety.

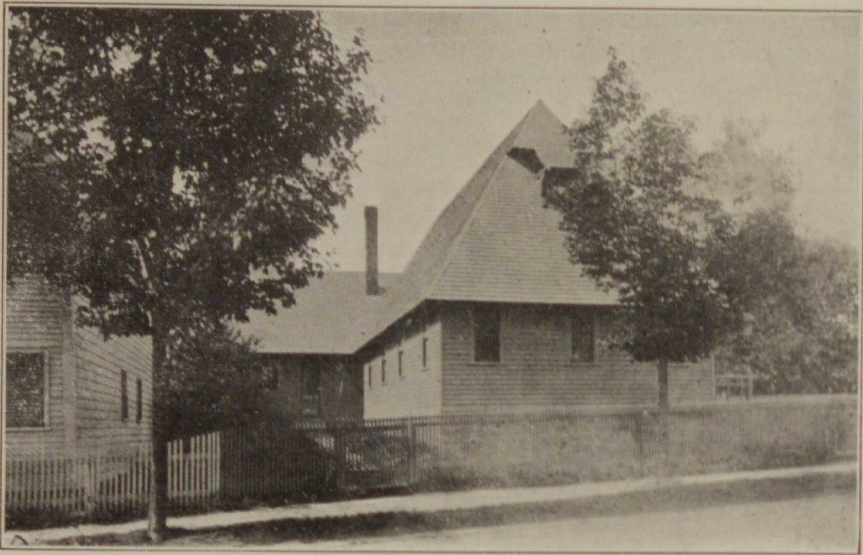

The Rev. Joseph M. Hobbs was the next Rector. At the time of his coming the church building was repaired and renovated. Mr. Hobbs remained about three years and made many warm friends during his comparatively short rectorship.

The Rev. Frederick Pember supplied for several months and presented a class of nine for confirmation.

In 1891 the Rev. Abel Millard took charge of the parish and remained six years. By his efforts the church, which had not before had a pulpit, was provided with one.

The Rev. F. W. Bartlett, D.D., was next called, but was obliged to resign after a few months because of a breakdown in health.

The services were conducted for a time by the Rev. Messrs. Metcalf, Murray and Ross. This was a period of depression. The church was without a settled pastor for nearly a year and had fallen in debt for its running expenses. Services were held regularly, however. Some of the people were disheartened, but there were brave souls who had faith in the Church and her Master, and believed that St. Paul's Church in Peabody had a future of promise. The members of the Vestry bestirred themselves, and by means of a circular letter placed the situation clearly before the whole membership, urging them to stand together and work. The response was immediate. In a surprisingly short time the debt was entirely wiped out, and when the next Rector took charge he found a church with all bills paid.

In January, 1900, The Rev. Welles Mortimer Partridge was called to the parish. His irresistible optimism and ceaseless activity were just what were needed to lift the church out of the rut into which it had fallen. His extraordinary faculty for making friends with all sorts and conditions of men speedily made him as one of the family in every home in the parish.

The building equipment at this time consisted of the church, in which the sessions of the Church School as well as the services were held, and one room without conveniences of any kind, which was used as a robing room by the Rector and the choir and for the keeping of the various articles used in the services and the Sunday School work. All the social activities were carried on in hired halls.

Mr. Partridge, who was a Deacon when he came to the parish, was ordained Priest on the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, 1900, by his brother, The Rt. Rev. Sidney Catlin Partridge, D.D., Bishop of Kyoto, Japan, at a largely attended and impressive service held in the church.

Mr. Partridge soon had a belfry built on the church and a bell placed in it. Then came the much needed parish house. In 1900 work upon it was started and the building was opened for use in 1904. It was a great help in the work of the parish, providing rooms for the Sunday School and for meetings and social gatherings. Owing to alterations and additions as the work progressed, the cost of the building was greatly in excess of what had been originally planned; with principal and interest it amounted to over eight thousand dollars. The payment of this seemed at the time a heavy tax upon the resources of a congregation composed almost wholly of working people, particularly as many of them did not approve of the extra expenditures made in its construction and were opposed to burying the church in the parish house, as they regarded it. The debt being in existence, however, the parish assumed it and the people worked earnestly and unremittingly to pay it off. This burden proved in the end a blessing in disguise, as it woke the people to the knowledge that they could accomplish much more than they had ever thought possible, and gave them confidence to undertake a much larger work when the time came. Mr. Partridge remained in charge of the parish until Easter, 1906. He had ninety-seven baptisms and presented seventy-two for confirmation.

In October 1906, The Rev. Edmund J. Cleveland became Rector. Mr. Cleveland, while always placing first the spiritual welfare of the parish, immediately set to work to put the finances on a firm and economical basis. He made it his invariable rule that no debts should be incurred and no business transacted — outside of the usual expenses and routine business — without due notice to and favorable action by the parish. The parish house debt amounted at this time to $1,884, exclusive of interest, and the current expenses had run behind about six hundred dollars. Mr. Cleveland planned a chart, divided into squares, each square representing five dollars of the parish house debt. The chart was made and framed, ready to be hung, by two men of the parish. A star was placed in a square for every five dollars received, and for each five dollars received the giver was entitled to place in a square the name of some one departed, or it could be used as a record of a thank offering. A canvass of the parish was made to secure semi-annual pledges of five dollars or more to meet the notes on the debt. The response was most encouraging. The addition of stars to the chart was watched with much interest. By united and constant work the floating debt was cleared, and when Mr. Cleveland resigned, in May 1908, the principal of the parish house debt had been reduced to sixteen hundred dollars.

On Whitsunday, June 7, 1908, The Rev. Allen Greene took charge. After looking into the condition of the parish, Mr. Greene expressed his conviction that its spiritual as well as material growth demanded that the parish house debt, which had been on the minds of the people for six years, and the principal of which now amounted to sixteen hundred dollars, be paid off as quickly as possible. So successful were the efforts made to accomplish this that on November 14, 1910, there was a star in every square on the chart — the parish house debt had been paid in full.

THE REV. ALLEN GREENE

RECTOR, 1908-1918

(It is pleasing to know that more than seven thousand dollars of the total cost was actually raised in the parish and no one felt poorer for what was give from their, in most cases, very limited incomes. The Ladies' Aid Society, which has been a financial mainstay since the organization of the parish, raised fifteen hundred dollars, the St. Agnes Guild five hundred, the Dramatic Club, the Church School and the Queens of Avilon smaller amounts; about fifteen hundred dollars was received from outside, and the remainder was the individual contribution of parishioners. The committee in charge of the construction of the building worked hard and long for its completion.)

Beside this the Rector worked steadily for the ideal and truly Christian method of Church support — the payment of the current expenses by the regular offerings, thus ensuring prompt settlement of bills, instead of a struggle near the close of the year to make up an accumulated deficit — and allowing the receipts from fairs, suppers, etc., to be used for other objects.

Soon after coming to the parish, Mr. Greene gave his attention to securing a rectory, which was an urgent need, suitable houses for rent being difficult to obtain, high in price, and of uncertain tenure. By his efforts a comfortable rectory, in a pleasant location, was built without expense to the parish, by the Reenforcement Fund Committee of the Diocese, and a non-resident churchman.

The growth of the church had been hindered from its beginning by the fact that its house of worship was small, poorly lighted and wretchedly ventilated. When filled with people it was almost unendurable. The parish house debt paid, and the rectory built, the Rector lost no time in bringing before the people the project of a new church building. This had long been wished for, but the cost of a building of satisfactory character seemed to make the undertaking too great to attempt. Now, however, encouraged by the really remarkable results so quietly and quickly accomplished under the leadership of the Rector, and the remembrance of what they had succeeded in doing under courageous leadership in the past, the people were ready to start upon a work that not many years ago seemed to most of the parishioners an impossibility.

The lot and house on the corner opposite the church was first purchased. Some time later a finely situated lot on Washington Street, which was large enough to accommodate a church, parish house and rectory, was offered to the Vestry at a reasonable price. This location gave great satisfaction to everyone; the first lot was resold and the second purchased. A campaign to raise ten thousand dollars for the new church was entered upon. After careful deliberation and consultation with Bishop Lawrence, parish meetings were held, and it was decided that the cost of the building be limited to twenty thousand dollars, and any debt incurred on it to ten thousand. A set of plans was accepted. The carrying out of the plans and all business connected therewith was committed to the Vestry. So rapidly did the business proceed that on Monday, July 21, 1913, ground was broken for the new structure. Work proceeded without interruption, and on Saturday, September 27, 1913, occurred one of the most notable events in the history of the parish — the Laying of the Corner Stone of the New Church.

The building is of English Gothic design. It is built of brick with concrete stone trimmings. The entrance is through the massive square tower on the southwest corner. It is a simple rectangle, with a spacious chancel, and a nave with three aisles, which will seat about two hundred and fifty. It can easily be enlarged if needed.

The robing rooms are in a wooden wing on the southeast corner. The organ is placed above them. The basement is used for the Church School until a parish house is built.

It had been intended to start on a parish house as soon as the church building was paid for, but the resignation of the rector and the breaking out of the war, caused it to be postponed indefinitely. The new church had been built with the understanding by the parishioners that when the building was consecrated it would be used thereafter only for purely religious purposes, so when the old church and parish house were sold, the small hall in the rear was built to be used for social gatherings.

Besides the three thousand five hundred dollars which was paid for the land, there was available for the building, at the time of laying the corner stone, over nine thousand dollars. Four thousand dollars of this amount has been promised by the Re-enforcement Fund Committee of the Diocese, which had already given generously towards the building of the rectory. Bishop Lawrence had many times given substantial evidence of his interest in the parish, and it had likewise enjoyed the cordial cooperation and help of Bishop Babcock.

In 1918, soon after the new building had been completely paid for and consecrated, Mr. Greene accepted a call to a larger parish in New Jersey. During his work here the church grew from a very small body to one of the largest in the community, there being 700 baptised persons and more than 350 Communicants. Forty-one young men from the church took part in the first world war; two, Lewis Love and Harold G. Van Norden, giving their lives.

The Rev. Francis L. Beal was the next Rector of St. Paul's. When he came here, churches were closed by the health authorities because of the influenza epidemic. As soon as the closing order was lifted the church resumed its usual activities and its work progressed steadily. Dr. Beal resigned in 1922 to go to a parish in Somerville.

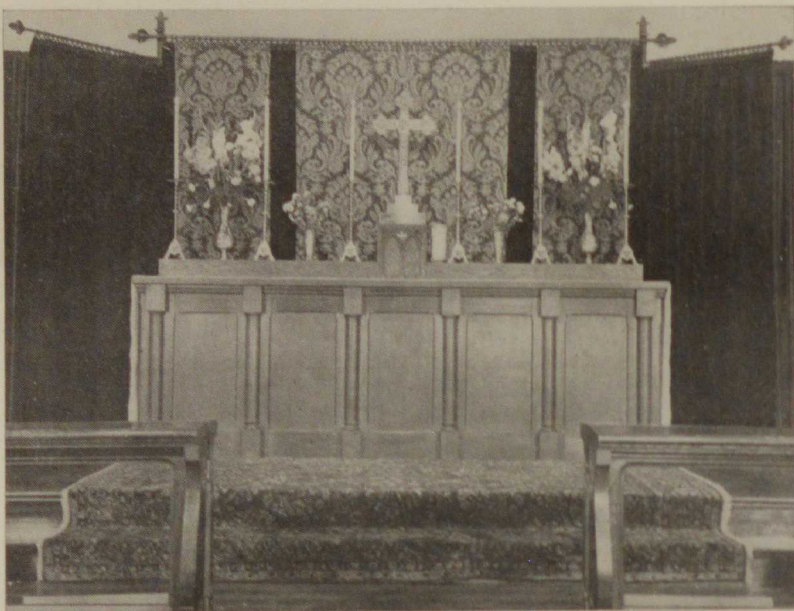

Dr. Beal was succeeded by the Rev. James J. Cogan, who remained sixteen years. During his residence here the church continued its activities, the Church School showing a large increase. Mrs. Cogan was a particularly active worker in the parish.

A notable event in the history of the parish was the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of its founding which was observed on November 1 and 2, 1924. The preacher at the Morning Service was Bishop Babcock. The Rev. Allen Greene, who was to have preached at the Evening Service, was unable to come because of illness. Both the services, and the banquet which followed on Monday evening, were crowded to overflowing, including many former parishioners from out of town. The former ministers present were The Rev. Joseph M. Hobbs, The Rev. Edmund J. Cleveland and The Rev. Francis L. Beal. Also present and speaking were Mayor W. A. Shea and most of the clergy of the other churches in the city.

Mr. Cogan resigned in 1938, and retired from the ministry, making his home in Salem.

The rectory, which had been near the old church, was a long distance from the new one. About this time the house adjacent to the new church was put up for sale. This was important news for the church people, so in order to protect the church from having this corner become a store or other business enterprise, the Vestry acted at once. The house is a substantial and attractive brick building, well adapted for a rectory, and was secured at a reasonable price, to the great relief of the church people. The first rectory was sold in 1944.

The house was renovated and fitted by the Vestry and Women's Guild. When the next Rector, the Rev. Lewis A. Houghton, came to the parish, the new home was ready to receive him. Mr. Houghton entered on the work with zeal and enthusiasm. During his residence the Altar was rebuilt and the 65th Anniversary of the parish was observed on October 8 and 9, 1939. The Rev. Allen Greene was the preacher, and a banquet was held on the following day. Large numbers of parishioners and friends attended all the meetings. In the second world war (1941-1945) eighty-two young men and two women from the parish were in the service; again two paid the supreme sacrifice—Howard MacFarland and Stewart O'Brien. In 1945 Mr. Houghton resigned to take a parish in Haverhill.

He was succeeded by the Rev. Lyle E. Scott, then in Deacon's Orders. Mr. Scott's ordination to the Priesthood took place in the church on December 22, 1946. During the stay of this faithful and devoted pastor a badly needed new oil burner was installed in the church. He resigned to accept a pastorate in Pennsylvania.

In June, 1948, the Rev. J. Norman Hall came to the Parish. He was also installed in the church in Deacon's Orders, and was ordained Priest on May 30, 1949, in Christ Church, Cambridge. Under his leadership the work of the church continues with great activity. The various societies are all well attended and the Church School, which had declined greatly in attendance during recent years, is growing so rapidly that it is crowding facilities beyond capacity.

A Building Fund has been started in connection with the Diamond Jubilee so that the School and other organizations may have comfortable space for their meetings. Plans for the new building are soon to be presented to the parish and it is hoped that the years immediately ahead will see the completion of this long-needed project.
